

THE

Square

GOLF BALL

March 24, 2016

Full Production Set To Resume

The Square Golf Ball® has been out of production for a few months as our manufacturing facility physically moved to a larger venue. Since we knew we would be offline for a period, we took this opportunity to reconfigure some of our production molds and tooling. All of the new elements are installed and initial production runs have begun. As soon as we have a solid indication that the new parts all work together as anticipated, we should be in full production mode by April 15th. We thank you for your patience as we took these upgrade measures. Prior to the production process shutting down we manufactured what we thought was a good reserve to see us through this down period. We underestimated badly, and have been virtually out of stock and unable to fulfill orders for 8+ weeks. As we come back online and ramp up efforts, our inventory will remain very short as we make good on all the on-hold orders. But please don't let that stop you – we're confident that orders of 50 or less units (for the immediate future) can be satisfied promptly. If you have a corporate order for 500+, we apologize for any minor delays that transpire. Our promise to you is that we'll build our inventory once again so that even the larger orders can be processed in a timely manner.

