

THE

SQUARE

GOLF BALL®

April 25, 2014

Do Not Hit The Square Golf Ball®

The Square Golf Ball® is a novelty item only. The Square Golf Ball® was never intended for use in golf, or to be struck with a club or bat. Because The Square Golf Ball® does not have a solid inner core like a traditional golf ball, The Square Golf Ball® will shatter if struck, hit or dropped from a high place. This web site offers a short video on what you can expect if you thought it would be fun to try and hit The Square Golf Ball® with a golf club. The Square Golf Ball® won't just be scratched up or dented – it will be in a thousand pieces with virtually no hope of reassembly. The temptation will be present to whip out The Square Golf Ball® the next time you're on the course with your buddies. Nothing keeps you from teeing up The Square Golf Ball® and having a laugh, but do not strike The Square Golf Ball®. Many finer courses will have regulations against littering or leaving garbage behind. Striking The Square Golf Ball® will present the same situation, and unless you're willing to spend 15 minutes picking up pieces, you'll be far better off by simply following the instructions and use The Square Golf Ball® in an indoor setting, as a novelty conversation piece.

