

THE

SQUARE

GOLF BALL®

April 3, 2015

What Questions Do You Have?

The Square Golf Ball® almost always evokes a question or two from anyone who sees and/or holds it. When we are at a trade show, most everyone who passes by stops, comes back and checks out what their eyes are seeing. This allows for a good verbal exchange and any question to be fully answered. Our website does a pretty good job of explaining the features, uses, benefits, etc of The Square Golf Ball®. Still, we know we haven't addressed every possible question out there. But an answer to your question is just a click away. Use the Contact Us link found on most pages of this website, and send us your question. We promise to answer as best we can. We should have the answer, even if we ourselves haven't asked ourselves that question before. We know from experience that the general public, the consumer – will have ideas and questions we simply had not thought of already. We've had plenty of constructive suggestions also, such as turning The Square Golf Ball® into an exploding golf ball (where a plume of white powder appears when struck with a driver). Interesting idea, but hardly one we're ready to embrace at the moment. The traditional exploding golf ball is meant to catch someone off guard, and surprise them as they tee off. The Square Golf Ball® simply wouldn't have that same surprise element. Besides, we stress NOT to hit The Square Golf Ball® with a driver for fear of damage to The Square Golf Ball® and your club. But we're always interested to hear comments – so don't hold back. Use the Contact Us link and send your ideas.

