

THE

SQUARE

GOLF BALL®

June 26, 2015

Can You Get The Square Golf Ball In Colors Other Than White?

The Square Golf Ball® was created with the intention to mimic a traditional golf ball in every way possible, other than the unique shape. 99% of traditional golf balls are white. Range balls, and arcade golf balls can be different colors, but that almost always signals a second-class of golf ball, and not a serious contender. So, we have stayed with the white base for this reason, plus, we have found that white is by far the best color to use when adding an image, logo or text. All other colors severely limit the range of colors that can be applied and still have enough contrast to be vibrant and eye-appealing. That said, the option to create an orange Square Golf Ball® (as an example), is possible. But we would be required to run an entire production run at the manufacturing stage, all with the same color. This adds expense, time and creates a situation where you'll need to buy a bunch – not just a few. Honestly, we've never made a batch other than white – the one request we received was just window shopping, and they were not prepared to order a complete production cycle in volume. And since we have no demand for other colors, we don't want to sit on a thousand orange units when the likelihood of selling another one is next to nil! The answer to the question is yes – but in reality, unless you have a very demanding reason for a color other than white, white will remain the base color. The Square Golf Ball® is patented by Bright Valley Enterprises LLC. The words “The Square Golf Ball” are trademark protected. Any infringement or copy of design or wording will be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law. With a novelty item as unique as The Square Golf Ball® the temptation to duplicate may be attractive. We hope everyone can enjoy The Square Golf Ball® produced in the USA. We also ask that any suspected non-authentic duplications be reported to us as soon as possible.

