The Square Golf Ball® can and is imprinted with a variety of graphics, logos and images. To date we have never had anyone not authorized to use a logo attempt to do so. Corporate logos are used and provided by that company, who is authorized to use the logo in this fashion. The images provided by individuals always involve a photo or self-created image, or some art which is public domain. Now just because this has not happened in the years we've been around doesn't mean it won't ever happen. Just so everyone knows – if the image is copyright protected, you either need to own it, have authorization to use it, or have written permission from the image owner to use it. Pretty straight forward. The Square Golf Ball® was initially conceived in 1995 while discussing golf. A poor day of putting spurred a comment by the now inventor about how a square golf ball wouldn't roll past the cup. After some laughs, the inventor sketched a rough design and even put the name "The Square Golf Ball®" on the sketch. The idea was filed away with no real pursuit. When the internet found its way into the scene, searching for all types of things became easier and easier. The inventor searched for this square golf ball item believing it must have been thought of before now. Searches went on, and finally in early 2012, after extensive and exhaustive searching, the original concept and name from 1995 came to life and the rest as they say, is history.
